Using a newspaper (online or print) or a nonfiction article, look for four types of embedded quotes:

- Introduced with a complete sentence:
- Introductory phrase,
- Introduced with a paraphrase
- Short quotes embedded within author's own words

In a nonfiction text like a magazine or newspaper article, highlight or write examples you find of:

-Direct quotes

Mrs. Lopez said, "I miss my students!"

-Indirect quotes

Mrs. Lopez was heard telling Mr. McKendry that she misses her students.

CHOICE BOARD

As you read your book, create a list of words that are capitalized because they are proper nouns. Look for names of specific people, places, and things.

Write a silly story from the perspective of something in your home that would notice how much more time you are spending at home. A pet, the fridge, the wife, the couch, etc.

Write a thank you letter to a healthcare worker. They are working extra long hours in difficult circumstances right now. Thank them for their courage, hard work, and for taking care of those in need. Mail it to a hospital!

I am missing sports! Are you? Persuade your best friend to join a sports team with you. Write your best 5 paragraph, structured persuasive essay and don't forget to explain your reasons with detail.

Using a newspaper (online or print) or a nonfiction article, highlight the various ways the author cites their information by citing a speaker, company, chart, etc.

Highlight the various citations in the text.

In the book you are reading, find at least one word per page where the author included context clues a reader could use to infer the meaning of the word.
